IX. Analytic and Marketing tools

What are Analytic tools?

Analytic tools, also called tracking tools, typically examine where visitors come from, which areas of a website are visited and how often and for how long which subpages and categories are viewed.

They are mainly used to optimize the website and to better achieve website goals (e.g. frequency of visits, increase in page views, orders, newsletter subscriptions). Basically, Web Analytics can differentiate between evaluation procedures for permanent measurement of site effectiveness and methods for finding weak points in the site and opportunities for improvement.

For what purpose do we use analytic tools?

With the methods of tracking used, we want to ensure a demand-oriented design and the continuous optimization of our website. Apart from that, we make use of methods of tracking to keep statistic records of the use of our website and to evaluate these for the purposes of optimizing our offer for you.

What is the legal basis for it?

The methods of tracking used by us - which are listed below - are performed on the basis of Article 6 (1) sentence 1 lit. a GDPR. When using these analysis tools, data can be transferred to servers located in the USA and processed there. Please note the following: From the point of view of the European Union, there is no "adequate level of protection" for the processing of personal data in the USA that corresponds to EU standards. However, Maltego has signed standard contractual clauses with certain service providers to ensure an appropriate level of data protection in the USA.

What are Marketing tools?

Marketing tools are used by Maltego to market our product to our customers. For this purpose, Maltego will serve ads through websites, services or platforms operated by third parties. Often, these ads are targeted at people who have similar interest and behavior as our existing customers.

For what purpose do we use the marketing tools?

By using marketing tools and running advertisements, we receive the opportunity to present our product to a larger audience. In combination with our analytic tools, we can market Maltego to users with similar interests as our existing customers and hope to enhance their work by using Maltego.

What is the legal basis for it?

The methods of marketing used by us - which are listed below - are performed on the basis of Article 6 (1) sentence 1 lit. a GDPR.

When using these marketing tools, data can be transferred to servers located in the USA and processed there. Please note the following: From the point of view of the European Union, there is no "adequate level of protection" for the processing of personal data in the USA that corresponds to EU standards. However, Maltego has signed standard contractual clauses with certain service providers to ensure an appropriate level of data protection in the USA.
